Applicable Company Policies:

Pikes Peak is one of the tallest peaks in Colorado. At over 4000 meters high, many people experience altitude sickness when going up to the Summit to work. We encourage everyone to take it slow, stay hydrated, and communicate with their managers if they are feeling ill. Altitude sickness is normal, and it can take time to get adjusted to it (usually a few days to a week).

We operate three locations on the mountain, each a little higher up. Students can expect to work at the different locations to get used to the high elevation. Workdays are very long due to the commute up the mountain (10-14 hours). We provide paid transportation to and from work.

Pikes Peak is a nonsmoking mountain from Gateway to Summit. That includes e-cigarettes, vapes, and any other tobacco products.

We follow all US CDC guidelines in regard to COVID-19 safety and protocol. Safety policies may adjust during the time due to local ordinances.

We do not allow the use of cell phones during work.
